Interstate Provides Free Load Optimization and Routing Service For Customers

Service saves customers millions of dollars by efficiently optimizing loading and routing – and it takes less than 15 minutes.

Tuesday, May 30, 2006

Saint Petersburg, FL: Interstate Transport, Inc., the leading freight management and logistics company, today announced it would provide free load optimization and routing services for its customers. Clients have already been successfully using this free service on a trial basis for several months – saving them up to 14% on their overall transportation costs (up to $140,000 in bottom line savings for each $1,000,000 in transportation costs). The free service is available immediately to both existing and new customers.

In addition to this free service, Interstate is allowing both existing and new clients to submit historical load information for free optimization and load analysis. Interstate's powerful computer systems will analyze the most efficient loading and routing of past loads and provide an analysis of savings compared to actual past transportation costs. Recent analysis for customers show up to 14% in total savings if loads are loaded and routed in the most efficient manner.

Tim Higham, CEO of Interstate, said, "This service is an extension of what we already do for our clients. Customers were asking us to help with larger segments of their business and we used our powerful software systems to analyze the data. In almost every case we have been able to help our customers save significant amounts of money. We decided to provide this valuable service free of charge as a goodwill gesture."

Interstate can provide the results of each load optimization and routing in as little as 15 minutes, delivered via fax, e-mail, or their protected website. Moreover, a 10 year historical analysis can be provided in less than one business day after the information is received by their dedicated analysts. Interested parties should contact Jon Dunn at 800-966-6183 ext. 1330.
